EVEN COMPLEXION

EVERYONE'S DESIRE

An even complexion is one of the most common desires amongst women across all ethnic groups for different reasons: looking younger, feeling more self-confident or getting social recognition.

Numerous factors, such as UV rays, free radicals, hormonal imbalances during pregnancy or caused by contraceptives, as well as our biological ageing may lead to localised hyperpigmentation with visible consequences on the evenness of our complexion.

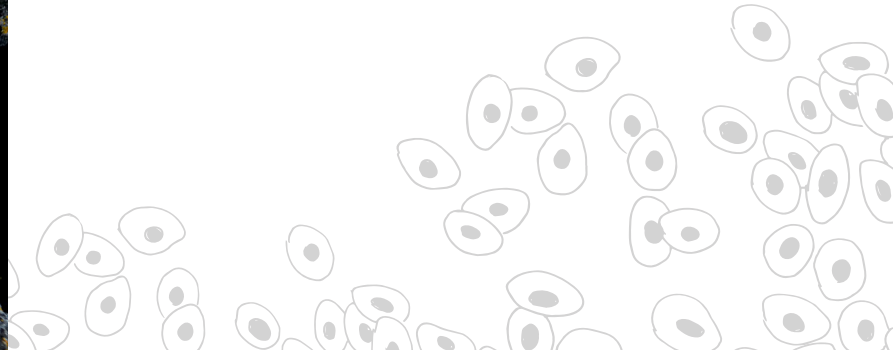

HYPERPIGMENTATION

DARK SPOTS

The production of melanin is a physiological mechanism used by the skin to protect itself against the action of solar radiation. When this does not occur in an even way or is excessive, it is called hyperpigmentation.

Age or sun spots appear more often after the age of 40 in the areas that are most exposed to the sun, such as face, neck, décolleté and hands. They have a well-defined look and different colors that depend on their depth in the skin.

BEAUTY TIPS

Some tips to help maximise the results of a brightening cosmetic treatment.

1. Always use a suitable sun protection factor. A wide spectrum solar screen (UVB and UVA) with high protection factor (SPF 50) should be applied several times a day and all year round.
2. Avoid using self-tanning products and perfumes because they may worsen uneven skin tones.
3. Choose food containing vitamins and substances with strong antioxidant actions: for example wheat germ oil and olive oil, citrus fruit, oily fish, broccoli and cauliflower, nuts and legumes. Furthermore, avoiding substances like simple sugar, alcohol and dairy products helps to significantly reduce pigmentation alterations.
4. It is important to choose supplements particularly rich in powerful antioxidants such as maritime pine extract that protects the skin from the stress and damage caused by sun burns and photo-ageing, and reduces hyperpigmentation for a more even complexion.
